Recognizing a Singular Knowledge and Wisdom Literary Strategies of Section Job 38:1–42:6

ABSTRACT

This article presents an overall reading of the entire section of the book of Job (38:1–42:6), using some meaningful contributions, gathered in previous studies of the composition of this section. By pursuing the process of biblical rhetorical analysis (composition, biblical context and interpretation) we were able in this final stage to emphasize some basic literary and thematic strategies, obtaining some new insights of understanding. First, the two pillars that literally support the narrative: the challenges and the answers and within them the experience of knowing what is unknown. Secondly, we justified that these literary characteristics lead to an understanding of God's intervention as an expression of a singular wisdom dynamism on God's revelation. A dynamism that develops through the strategies of unfathomable knowledge, that becomes able to indicate point some traces of a wisdom intelligence of the singularity of God.
